Balearics vote to outlaw killing bulls at “fights”

Palma.—The Balearic parliament yesterday banned matadors from killing bulls in the ring, becoming one of several Spanish regions to move towards criminalising the centuries-old blood sport.

The bill adopted in the Balearics parliament prohibits a bull’s death in the ring and makes it illegal for the animals to endure physical or psychological damage. Bullfights will be limited to a maximum of 10 minutes, a parliament spokesman said.

Traditionally, every bullfight in Spain involves six of the specially-bred animals pitted against matadors for 20-30 minutes. See Inside
